

Web Help on Career Exploration

Mapping Your Future
www.mapping-your-future.org

The Career Key
www.careerkey.org
(English, Korean, Chinese, Spanish, Caribbean)

Occupational Outlook Handbook
www.bls.gov/search/ooah.asp?ct=OOH
See their home site for more great stuff!!! www.bsl.gov

Trying to decide on a specific career is a difficult task if you don't know where to start. These web sites can help. You need to first focus your search on just a few career choices. Web sites like Mapping Your Future and The Career Key can help you begin this process. After you have whittled away at the choices and settled on a few, you can refer to the Occupational Outlook Handbook, which is provided by the U.S. Department of Labor. At this site, you can pick a career from the A-Z listing or type in a career to get more information (training and education needed, earnings, expected job prospects, what workers do on the job, working conditions, and other related occupations). Enjoy the process and don't stress because your first career choice can and will probably change. The idea is to start thinking about what the possibilities are and then create a career plan that fits you, so have FUN!